Great consulting sets an organization up for great success. Great training on the other delivers change in behavior, approach and perspective so as to equip your Human Capital with the skills, knowledge and attitudes to achieve organizational goals; sometimes it doesn't. We believe that training should equip and inspire your staff to be the best they can be, and deliver the best value they can to your organization. We have a unique inspirational and engaging approach which ensures that the change you want is delivered, to enable you to achieve your training and staff development objectives. We use a combination of precise analysis and diagnosis, interactive delivery, action planning, post-course support and Facilitators with real management experience to beat the oft experienced problem of low return on training investment. ILD Training & Consulting was initially registered in 2004 as Inspirational Leadership Development, to undertake training and consulting that propels our customers towards their goals. In 2006, we changed the name to ILD Training & Consulting, a brand that epitomizes and retains the initial ideals. We are focused and results oriented in our manner and approach. We have a team of highly qualified associates who have theoretical and hands on management experience in the various areas of training and consultancy we engage in. All our Consultants have worked with various organizations in various industries. We have undertaken assignments for many varied organizations, including:
